I believe Microsoft has suffered enough at the expense of the government and its competitors. I believe the US government and State's government should back off and give Microsoft a fair settlement and allow them to go back to providing the public with the good software and services they are known for. In my opinion the government's interference has already cost us, the general public, a great deal in lost services of Microsoft. Microsoft should be rewarded, not penalized, for the great work and services they have provided us in the past at a very reasonable price

Sincerely yours
